Fair Labor Standards Act Update Reminder

Upcoming Department of Labor changes in rules regulating overtime are effective December 1, 2016.

On May 18, 2016, the Department of Labor (DOL) announced upcoming changes to the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) regulations impacting overtime pay eligibility. The announced changes will be effective December 1, 2016.

In general, the changes to the FLSA will impact overtime eligibility. Currently, employees who are paid on a salary basis, earn at least $455 per week and meet the “Primary Duties” test, as defined by the DOL, are ineligible for overtime pay. Based on the recent announcement, the weekly earnings will increase to $913 per week beginning December 1, 2016. The other requirements remain the same.

There are currently other special FLSA guidelines that deem those who predominately perform teaching duties, certain computer-related occupations, and outside sales positions ineligible for overtime. These guidelines do not require employees meet a specified weekly salary amount. There are no changes to those exemptions at this time.

HRS is working with colleges and other areas to implement the changes. Those employees who were previously overtime ineligible and will become overtime eligible as a result of the salary test change will be notified in early November.

Please check out the following FLSA Salary Test information including FAQs or you may contact HRS at 509-335-4521.
